We hope you are all keeping healthy and coping as well as possible with the emotional and practical consequences of life under lockdown. For some it has been a grim experience, others may be enjoying some aspects of it.

People are talking about this being a unique opportunity to shape our future society, based on the positive aspects of living through the past few weeks. We don't want this opportunity to pass us by! ACAN is keen to hear your views on what we should keep from these days, on how we could use our shared experience to create a more sustainable, greener and fairer society.

Please email us with your thoughts on a vision for the future, by Friday 22nd May. We will bring together and publish the most popular ideas for further discussion with the community and its leaders, on how we can work together to make them a reality for the long-term future.

ACAN's 2020 Vision

What we should keep from the lockdown experience.

Yesterday I asked my son what he valued the most about lockdown and his response was:

1. The recognition and respect we have been showing to key workers in the NHS, care workers, delivery drivers, shop workers and so many more – these are the people that keep us going through thick and thin and it is only now they are getting the appreciation they deserve.
2. Cleaner air.
3. The chance to slow down and play computer games.

Let us work together to make the most of what we have learnt during these challenging times and make our world a better place.
